He is now constructing a Canadian railroad, and he has a line of steamers on the Pacific and boat lines on the Great Lakes which can be made of valuable use to such a canal. DRY-DOCK.—Seattle, Wash.—Press reports from Washington, D. C., announce that plans for the largest and best dry-dock in the world are being prepared in the Bureau of Yards and Docks at the Navy Department. The last naval appropriation contained a provision for a dock to cost $1,250,000, to be constructed at the Bremerton Navy Yard, Puget Sound, Washington. This amount is larger than ever before appropriated for a dock. The new dock when completed, will be able to take in the largest battleship, either in course of construction or in contemplation. The location for the dock has already been selected at the yard and borings are now being made to learn the depth of the foundation. It is to be a concrete dock of the latest pattern, and the materials will be purchased on the Pacific Coast, if practicable. The dock is to be so constructed that it can be lengthened if vessels of greater length should be built in the future. It will be 37 ft. in depth over sill, which will provide for the docking of any vessel that can be built unless some unknown system of building is developed. The greater depth of the new dock is also designed to meet cases where a vessel has been injured and draws much more than the ordinary depth on account of the injury.

Consul-General at Singapore, in consular report on railway operations on the Malay Peninsula, states that "in the Federated Malay States, Province Wellesley and Malacca, the railways constructed, opened and operated amount at the present time to 396 miles, exclusive of the Sungei Ujong Railway, and constitute the Federated Malay States Railways system. No length in Johore Territory, which lies to the north of Singapore Island, is yet open to traffic. The length of branches is 74 miles 54 chains, exclusive of the Sungei Ujong Railway, 25 miles, a guaranteed railway worked by a company. All of the railways in Province Wellesley, Malacca and the Federated Malay States—that is, Perak, Selangor, and Negri Sembilan—have been constructed and are operated by the Federated Malay States government. The colonial government supplied funds to build the Malacca Branch, Tampin to Malacca, 21¼ miles, which was constructed by the Federated Malay States railways department for the colonial government. When completed, the Federated Malay States government purchased it from the colonial government. The Johore State Line is financed by the Federated Malay States government and is being constructed for the Johore government by the Federated Malay States railways department under a convention. The total expenditure on open lines up to Dec. 31, 1905, amounted to $37,261,923, Straits currency, equal to about $18,630,961 United States gold, which includes all expenditures, and the formation of four ports, also works at Penang and Malacca ports. The whole of this money has been supplied from current revenue of the Federated Malay States. The total length of the main trunk line, Johore Bahru to Prai, in Province Wellesley, will be 472½ miles when completed. There is a five-mile steam ferry between Penang and Prai, the northern terminus of these railways. From Johore Bahru to Woodlands, Singapore Island, there is a steam ferry one mile; Woodlands to Singapore City, the railroad distance is 15 miles. The total distance from Singapore to Penang by railroad will be 487½ miles, steam ferry six miles. The distance from Johore Bahru to Johore-Negri Sembilan frontier is 120½ miles, now under construction and good progress has been made for 30 miles from both ends. At the present moment, exclusive of the construction in Johore territory, there are 33 odd miles under construction south of Tampin, 21 miles of which is ready for opening. The line should be completed in 18 to 24 months, when a through service can be instituted. With the completion of the main trunk line and branches, transportation facilities for products of the native states will be greatly improved. Other lines are contemplated running northerly through Pahang, for which preliminary surveys have already been made, and routes have been explored through Kalantan, a province of Southern Siam, to Kota Bahru at the mouth of Kalantan River on the coast of the China Sea. These prospective lines will open up valuable tin-bearing countries and give producers of other products easy and cheap transportation facilities to sea ports."
